

The Sky Command System as proposed by Kenwood is an innovation in amateur communication. The frequencies used by this system are little used in most areas. "Good amateur practice" will be sufficient to handle any interference problems.